

ADVANCED ELECTRICAL TRACTION EQUIPMENT - FROM FEASIBILITY STUDY TO PROTOTYPE DESIGN

This report reviews the work done on the tubular axle induction motor and its power conditioning equipment during 1974 and 1975. It begins with the feasibility study necessary to define the optimum configuration of motor and drive, and includes a full description of the design of the prototype equipment. An indication of future work on the project is also given.